INTERESTING VIEWS OF WILLIAM HAMPDEN JOHNSTONE, THE ELECTRICIAN.

Breaks of Lightning--The Usefulness of Hair--Accidents With the Wires--What should be Done for Human Protection.

(For the Dispatch--Copyright by Bachelor & Co., 1889.)

The poor fellow roasting on the wires of a cross-arm telegraph pole, the other day before the eyes of thousands was a well-deserved punishment for the transgression and vagaries of this terrible force which we call electricity.

It is well-nigh impossible to say what it will do and what it will not do.

It is the most most expert electrical engineer of today is very much like that of a man who has caught, harnessed, and tamed a horse.

It is only those that an inventor or experimenter can rely upon to do the work and try it.

General Malone and General Lee.

Richmond, Va., October 19, 1889.

I have been very much interested in the discussion which has taken place in the public prints and which has interested a fresh impetus to the publication of Major Lee's and General Lee's opinions.

Without questioning in the slightest the generalization of Major Lee's opinion, I do not believe that he is honestly mistaken.

General Malone returned home last evening, and he had a meeting of the State Committee of the Democratic Workingmen's Club.

It is now quite easy to form a comprehensive view of the curious action of the Democratic Workingmen's Club.
